House Report 113-213, Part 1, (H.R. 1526), To restore employment and educational opportunities in, and improve the economic stability of, counties containing National Forest System land, while also reducing Forest Service management costs, by ensuring that such counties have a dependable source of revenue from National Forest System land, to provide a temporary extension of the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act of 2000, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-217 (H.R. 586), To provide for certain improvements to the Denali National Park and Preserve in the State of Alaska, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-218 (H.R. 638), To amend the National Wildlife Refuge System Administration Act of 1966 to require that any new national wildlife refuge may not be established except as expressly authorized by statute.

House Report 113-219 (H.R. 930), To authorize the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a special resource study of the archeological site and surrounding land of the New Philadelphia town site in the State of Illinois, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-220 (H.R. 1168), To direct the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Bureau of Land Management, to convey to the City of Carlin, Nevada, in exchange for consideration, all right, title, and interest of the United States, to any Federal land within that city that is under the jurisdiction of that agency, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-221 (H.R. 1459), To ensure that the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 applies to the declaration of national monuments, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-222 (H.R. 1513), To revise the boundaries of the Gettysburg National Military Park to include the Gettysburg Train Station and certain land along Plum Run in Cumberland Township, to limit the means by which property within such revised boundaries may be acquired, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-223 (H.R. 2197), To amend the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act to designate segments of the York River and associated tributaries for study for potential inclusion in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

House Report 113-224 (H.R. 2640), To amend the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act to adjust the Crooked River boundary, to provide water certainty for the City of Prineville, Oregon, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-248, Part 1, (H.R. 623), To provide for the conveyance of certain property located in Anchorage, Alaska, from the United States to the Alaska Native Tribal Health Consortium.

House Report 113-249 (H.R. 1963), To amend the Water Conservation and Utilization Act to authorize the development of non-Federal hydropower and issuance of leases of power privileges at projects constructed pursuant to the authority of the Water Conservation and Utilization Act, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-250, Part 1, (H.R. 2463), To amend the Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Restoration Act to facilitate the establishment of additional or expanded public target ranges in certain States.

House Report 113-261 (H.R. 2728), To recognize States' authority to regulate oil and gas operations and promote American energy security, development, and job creation.

House Report 113-262, Part 1, (H.R. 1965), To streamline and ensure onshore energy permitting, provide for onshore leasing certainty, and give certainty to oil shale development for American energy security, economic development, and job creation, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-263 (H.R. 1548), To facilitate the development of energy on Indian lands by reducing Federal regulations that impede tribal development of Indian lands, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-280 (H.R. 298), To direct the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a special resource study to evaluate the significance of the Mill Springs Battlefield located in Pulaski and Wayne Counties, Kentucky, and the feasibility of its inclusion in the National Park System, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-281 (H.R. 1241), To facilitate a land exchange involving certain National Forest System lands in the Inyo National Forest, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-282 (H.R. 1846), To amend the Act establishing the Lower East Side Tenement National Historic Site, and for other purposes.

House Report 113-287 (H.R. 2319), To clarify certain provisions of the Native American Veterans' Memorial Establishment Act of 1994.

APPENDIX VI

ACTIVITIES REPORT—ADDITIONAL VIEWS

Full Committee

The House Natural Resources Committee had a busy and productive year focusing on legislative and oversight activities to create and protect jobs and grow the economy through the responsible use and production of our natural resources. The Committee held 93 hearings and meetings in total, including 25 by the Full Committee.

The House passed 50 bills from the Committee this year, each with bipartisan support. This includes 41 bills passed under the suspension process—which means each of these bills had broad, overwhelming, and bipartisan support in the House. 10 bills have been signed into law by the President.

In addition to advancing legislation, the Committee also took serious its responsibility to conduct oversight of the Executive Branch. The Committee took a close and thoughtful look at numerous Obama Administration policies, regulations and actions, including the Endangered Species Act, the Magnuson Stevens Act, the National Ocean Policy, the barricading of national parks and monuments during the government shutdown, and many more. Through investigations and oversight hearings, the Committee sought answers from the Administration on behalf of the American people and promoted accountability and transparency.

Endangered Species Act

The Committee held five oversight hearings this year on the Endangered Species Act (ESA), examining ways in which the law can be improved and modernized. The ESA was created four decades ago in 1973. Since that time, over 1,500 U.S. domestic species and sub-species have been listed. Most species remain on the list and hundreds more could potentially be added within just the next two years. Congress last renewed the ESA in 1988, which means it has been 25 years since any substantial updates have been made.

The Committee specifically examined the impacts of ESA-related litigation and closed-door settlement agreements. Excessive litigation has become one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the ESA. Instead of focusing on recovering endangered species, groups are using the ESA to file hundreds of lawsuits, threats of lawsuits, and petitions against the government. In response, agencies have focused significant time and financial resources addressing those lawsuits instead of on conservation efforts to avoid species listings, ensuring the collection of transparent and best data, and species recovery. In 2011 the Interior Department announced it had negotiated, behind closed-doors, mega-settlements with the Center for Biological Diversity and WildEarth Guardians. Together, these set-lements (and others involving other groups with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries Service) could increase the number of federal species listed by 50 percent—up to 700 additional species by 2016. In just the past two years alone, the number of species listings has increased by 210.

The Committee also held an oversight hearing highlighting successful tribal, state and local stewardship versus the regulatory mandates and sue-and-settle practices of the federal government. The hearing examined how Indian tribes, state and local communities have been able to implement successful conservation efforts to keep species off of the ESA list and do it in a manner that responsibly respects local economic activities, private property, and other uses.

Finally, the Committee focused on the need to increase transparency of ESA-listing decisions, rules, and executive orders. Much of the science and data used to justify endangered species regulatory actions are not publicly available for analysis. This lack of transparency, availability of data, and peer review leads to questions about the scientific inadequacy and lack of prioritization of listing decisions. Modernization of scientific and transparency, including use of DNA and the Internet, are not sufficiently utilized.

National Ocean Policy

The Committee conducted oversight over President Obama's plan to unilaterally implement a new National Ocean Policy and mandatory ocean zoning. Established through Executive Order, the President's National Ocean Policy is the latest regulatory weapon to impose new bureaucratic restrictions on nearly every sector of our economy. While marketed as a common sense plan for the development and protection of our oceans, it is instead being used to create a massive new bureaucracy that would harm our economy.

The reach of the President's ocean zoning initiative is not limited to just our oceans but also would grant new federal authority to regulate far inland. That means all activities occurring on lands adjacent to rivers, tributaries, or watersheds that drain into the ocean could be impacted. This has the potential to affect a multitude of economic activities including agriculture, fishing, construction, manufacturing, mining, oil and natural gas, and renewable energy. These industries currently support tens of millions of jobs and contribute trillions of dollars to the U.S. economy.

The Natural Resources Committee held an oversight hearing and sent a series of document request letters to the Administration regarding how this initiative has been funded, the breadth of its reach, and the impacts it will have on jobs, our economy, and energy security.

Magnuson-Stevens Act

The Committee this year held multiple hearings on fisheries management and the reauthorization of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act. The Magnuson-Stevens Act governs the recreational and commercial harvest of fisheries in Federal waters. It was last authorized by Congress in 2006 and a draft proposal to renew and modernize the law was unveiled in mid-December for public input. The draft proposal would implement common sense reforms that will promote increased flexibility and transparency, improve data collection, create jobs, and give predictability and certainty to the coastal communities that depend on fishing activities.

Obama administration's efforts to rewrite regulations on coal production

Almost immediately after taking office, the Obama Administration began rewriting a recently completed coal regulation, the 2008 Stream Buffer Zone Rule. This unnecessary action, carried out through the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement at the Department of the Interior, proposed to dramatically alter a regulation that took over five years of environmental analysis and careful scientific consideration to complete. The Department's process in rewriting this regulation has been rushed and unorthodox. After tossing aside the 2008 plan, the Department spent millions of taxpayer dollars and hired new contractors to complete a new environmental impact statement, even though one was already completed for the 2008 rule. Those contractors were dismissed after it was publically revealed that the Administration's new proposed regulation would cost 7,000 jobs and cause economic harm in 22 states. The Administration has spent $9 million taxpayer dollars working on this rewrite, but has failed to even publish a draft rule.

For over two years the Committee has been conducting an investigation into this rewrite. The Committee has passed legislation, H.R. 2824, the Preventing Government Waste and Protecting Coal Mining Jobs in America Act by Reps. Bill Johnson (OH-06) and Doug Lamborn (CO-05), that would save American jobs and taxpayer dollars by preventing the Obama Administration from imposing job-destroying coal regulations.

The National Park Service's implementation of the Government shutdown

During President Obama's government shutdown in October, the Committee conducted extensive oversight and held a joint hearing with the Oversight and Government Reform Committee on the Administration's arbitrary and unnecessary actions including the erection of metal barricades around certain national parks, monuments, and memorials in order to make the government shutdown as painful as possible. Americans were deliberately being denied access to open-air memorials and national parks—places that are open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and were not closed by the Clinton Administration during the last government shutdown. Private businesses on federal lands were also initially forced to close. Document request letters have been sent to multiple agencies to document these arbitrary decisions.

Retroactive sequester cuts to Secure Rural Schools payments

The Committee continues to conduct oversight into the Obama Administration's decision to retroactively subject Secure Rural Schools (SRS) payments to sequestration cuts. On March 19th, the Obama Administration demanded repayment of $17.9 million in SRS payments that had already been disbursed to states. SRS funds help to replace the timber receipts counties used to get to pay for vital services in rural communities including education, infrastructure, and emergency services. The Obama Administration's demand sparked bipartisan opposition from Governors and Members of Congress, who sent a letter questioning why the Administration was subjecting SRS payments that were made to counties in January based on fiscal year 2012 funding, to the fiscal year 2013 sequester. After months of stonewalling by the Administration and multiple attempts by this Committee to get answers about these retroactive cuts, subpoenas were issued to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Office of Management and Budget for documents and information. The Obama Administration has yet to fully comply with the subpoenas.

Department of the Interior's ethics office

For over a year the Committee has conducted oversight of how political appointees and senior career officials within the Department of the Interior are complying with federal ethics and conflict of interest laws. Committee staff were told by Department officials at the beginning of this investigation that only eight ethics cases have been referred to the Office of the Inspector General (IG) since January 2009—only one of those cases involved a senior career official and none involved a political appointee. Serious questions have been raised about whether the Department and the IG are, in fact, aggressively pursuing allegations of wrongdoing and whether current and former senior Obama Administration officials are being held accountable for complying with federal ethics and conflict of interest laws.

Department of the Interior's Office of Inspector General

The Committee this year conducted oversight and released a staff report on the need for a permanent Inspector General for the Department of the Interior. Since the Department's previous Inspector General Earl Devaney was appointed to a new position nearly four years ago, the Department's Office of Inspector General (IG) has been run by Deputy Inspector General Mary Kendall, serving in an acting capacity. The Department has been without a permanent IG since 2009. The report, entitled "Holding Interior Watchdog Accountable," details mismanagement by Ms. Kendall while overseeing the IG. These include: not pursuing investigations involving political appointees or Administration priorities; informing senior Department officials of problems without conducting formal investigations and not issuing reports to Congress and the public; not adequately documenting the management of IG investigations and operations; serving in an appointed policy role in conflict with the IG's investigative duties; preventing an investigator from seeking information from a White House official; and providing inaccurate and misleading information to Congress.

The report also details how Ms. Kendall has openly expressed the desire to receive the nomination to become the permanent Inspector General while administering the IG's oversight role in a manner that was privately accommodating to senior Department officials and the Obama Administration compared to the IG's more assertive style in past Administrations.

Energy and Mineral Resources Subcommittee

Chaired by Rep. Doug Lamborn (CO-05), the Energy and Minerals Subcommittee has held 17 legislative and oversight hearings this year focused on protecting and expanding access to American energy and mineral resources in order to create jobs, grow our economy, and strengthen our national security.

The Subcommittee worked extensively this year to pass legislation to increase federal production of oil, natural gas, and renewable energy resources—both onshore and offshore.

In June, the House passed H.R. 2231, the Offshore Energy and Jobs Act. This bill removes federal government barriers that block production of our own U.S. energy resources and opens new offshore areas that have that most oil and natural gas resources. The bill would create 1.2 million American jobs, generate $1.5 billion in revenue, lower energy prices, and strengthen our national security. In June, the House also passed H.R. 1613, the Outer Continental Shelf Transboundary Hydrocarbon Agreements Authorization Act. This legislation would enact the terms of an agreement signed by the Obama Administration and Mexico to govern how to explore, develop, and share revenue from oil and natural gas resources along the maritime border in the Gulf of Mexico.

The House this year also passed a package of bills to protect and expand onshore American energy production. H.R. 1965, the Federal Lands Jobs and Energy Security Act of 2013, includes the following five Natural Resources bills:

- Federal Lands Jobs and Energy Security Act (Lamborn CO-05)—This bill would reform the leasing process for onshore oil and natural gas projects on federal lands to eliminate unnecessary delays; reform the process for energy permitting, once a lease is in hand, to encourage the timely development of our federal resources; ensure funds are available for efficient wind and solar permitting; and set clear rules for the development of U.S. oil shale resources.

- Planning for American Energy Act (Tipton, CO-03)—This bill would establish common sense steps to create an all-of-the-above American energy plan for using federal lands to meet our Nation's energy needs.

- National Petroleum Reserve Alaska Access Act (Hastings, WA-04)—This bill would cut through bureaucratic red tape to unlock the full potential of energy resources in the National Petroleum Reserve-Alaska (NPR-A) by ensuring that oil and natural gas are developed and transported in a timely and efficient manner.

- BLM Live Internet Auctions Act (Johnson, OH-06)—This bill would give the Secretary of the Interior the authority to conduct internet-based auctions for onshore leases to ensure the best return to the Federal taxpayer, reduce fraud, and secure the leasing process.

- Native American Energy Act (Young, AK-At Large)—This bill would streamline burdensome and duplicative government regulations and remove the barriers erected by the Obama Administration that are blocking Indian tribes from developing energy resources on their own land and creating new jobs.

The Subcommittee held numerous oversight and legislation hearings this year on the Interior Department's proposed regulations of hydraulic fracturing on federal and tribal lands. The Obama Administration's proposed federal regulations on hydraulic fracturing would cost American jobs, decrease American energy production, increase energy prices, and harm economic growth. They would add duplicative, costly, and unnecessary layers of red-tape. According to a study by John Dunham & Associates, the proposed regulation would cost at least $345 million annually. In November, the House passed H.R. 2728, the Protecting States' Rights to Promote American Energy Security Act, introduced by Rep. Bill Flores (R-TX) and Rep. Henry Cuellar (D-TX). This bipartisan bill would protect American jobs and American energy production by limiting the Obama Administration's ability to impose duplicative federal regulations on hydraulic fracturing. It prohibits the Interior Department from enforcing federal hydraulic fracturing regulations in any state that already has regulations and recognizes states' authority to regulate this type of activity.

For over a year, the Subcommittee has conducted oversight on our Nation's helium program and successfully developed legislation, which was signed into law (Public Law No: 113-40) by the President in October, to prevent an impending helium shortage. H.R. 527, the Responsible Helium Administration and Stewardship Act, sponsored by Chairman Hastings and then-Ranking Member Markey, is a common sense plan to sell helium from the Federal Helium Reserve in a responsible manner to prevent a global shortage, close the Federal Helium Reserve once and for all, protect jobs and the economy, and ensure a fairer return for taxpayers.

Finally, the Subcommittee held numerous oversight and legislative hearings this year on coal and mineral production. Currently, the U.S. is nearly 100% reliant on foreign countries, such as China, for rare earth elements and other critical and strategic minerals that are vital components to America's manufacturing sector. The House passed H.R. 761, the National Strategic and Critical Minerals Production Act, by Rep. Mark Amodei (NV-02), which would allow the U.S. to more efficiently develop our Nation's strategic and critical minerals and streamline the permitting process for mineral development.

Fisheries, Wildlife, Oceans and Insular Affairs Subcommittee

The Subcommittee on Fisheries, Wildlife, Oceans and Insular Affairs, chaired by Rep. John Fleming (LA-04), held 11 hearings this year focused on promoting responsible management and conservation of our fisheries, wildlife, and ocean resources as well as economic development and fiscal responsibility in insular areas. The fundamental goal of the hearings was to balance responsible stewardship of our natural resources with the need to protect and create American jobs.

The Subcommittee carefully examined budget requests of the agencies under its jurisdiction including the Fish and Wildlife Service, the Office of Insular Affairs, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Council on Environmental Quality. The Obama Administration requested that $1.55 billion be allocated to the Fish and Wildlife Service for Fiscal Year 2014, $94 million more than what was appropriated in Fiscal Year 2013. The Fish and Wildlife Service indicated that its Fiscal Year 2014 budget submission includes a number of "tough choices." Yet, a close examination of their requests found that only the construction account would receive less money in the upcoming fiscal year.

Members of the Subcommittee held several oversight hearings on the Lacey Act and its unintended consequences. The Act was enacted in 1900 to protect native flora and fauna by banning the interstate transportation and sale of illegally obtained animal and certain plants. However, since then it has been amended several times, including expansions to include foreign laws, fish, and the importation and sale of illegally obtained timber and other plant products. The broad expansion of the law has increased job-destroying red-tape and resulted in unanticipated consequences that have negatively impacted individuals and American businesses. In September, the Subcommittee furthered its oversight of the Lacey Act by examining the potential effects of the Fish and Wildlife Service's proposal to short-circuit, by executive fiat, existing rules for adding species to the Lacey Act's injurious wildlife list.

The Subcommittee also conducted oversight into the National Wildlife Refuge System. The National Wildlife Refuge System is comprised of federal lands that have been acquired or designated for the conservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife, and on which compatible recreation is allowed. However, the current maintenance backlog recorded for the Fish and Wildlife Service now stands at $2.3 billion. The Subcommittee specifically examined the Fish and Wildlife's decision and the amount it would cost taxpayers to expand the boundaries of the Chickasaw and Lower Hatchie National Wildlife Refuges in Tennessee by 120,078 acres. The expansion of the Chickasaw and Lower Hatchie National Wildlife Refuges is a classic case of the federal government's desire to buy an unlimited amount of private land, while ignoring its responsibilities to maintain the land it already owns. Along those lines, the Committee adopted legislation sponsored by Subcommittee Chairman Fleming to require a Congressional authorization of all new national wildlife refuges and extend the conservation of wildlife on 30 million acres of military lands.

The Subcommittee reviewed legislation to update authorized appropriations for laws that support programs to assist commercial and recreational vessels transiting through U.S. waterways—H.R. 1399, the Hydrographic Services Improvement Act and H.R. 2219, the Integrated Coastal and Ocean Observation System Act. The programs authorized by these laws support: the collection of hydrographic survey data to produce nautical charts and the collection of data on currents, waves, and wind speed used by vessels transiting into U.S. ports; the collection of physical, geological, biological and chemical data to support ocean research, monitoring and forecasting, as well as fisheries management; the collection of ocean circulation patterns data to assist coastal managers in understanding the movement of marine debris to protect human safety and health; and the collection of ocean currents and storm surges to assist in the safe design of ocean structures (i.e. oil and gas platforms) to reduce damage and loss of life.

The Subcommittee also reviewed legislation dealing with severe marine debris events—H.R. 1425, to allow grant funding to be used to address these severe events and H.R. 1491, which would allow the Administrator of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration to reimburse states for past, current and any future marine debris clean-up costs related to the 2011 Japan tsunami event.

Finally, the Subcommittee moved legislation (H.R. 573) to provide the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands management authority over 3 nautical miles of its territorial sea giving the Commonwealth parity with the other U.S. territories. It became P.L. 113–34.

Indian and Alaska Native Affairs Subcommittee

Chaired by Rep. Don Young (AK, at large), the Subcommittee this year focused on promoting job creation and economic growth on Tribal and Alaska Native lands.

The Subcommittee held multiple hearings on Tribal development of energy resources and the creation of energy jobs on Indian lands. While Indian lands contain vast energy resources, actions by the Obama Administration have prevented many tribes from developing resources, creating jobs, and improving their local tribal economies. Since taking office, the Obama Administration has implemented numerous roadblocks to Indian Energy development. The Subcommittee has conducted vigorous oversight of the Administration in order to shine light on these policies and ensure accountability.

In November, the House passed H.R. 1965, the Federal Lands Jobs and Energy Security Act. This included legislation, the Native American Energy Act, introduced by Subcommittee Chairman Young, to streamline burdensome and duplicative government regulations and increase the opportunity for Indian tribes to develop energy resources on their own land.

The House also passed H.R. 2728, the Protecting States' Right to Promote American Energy Security Act, which included an amendment that would protect the rights of tribal nations by keeping the federal government from imposing additional hydraulic fracturing regulations on tribal lands. Many tribes have expressed concerns that they were left out of the Interior Department's rulemaking process on hydraulic fracturing and that the proposed rule could greatly impede Tribes' ability to develop their own energy resources.

The Subcommittee conducted oversight this year on the implementation of the Federal Communications Commission's (FCC) rule on the Universal Service Fund and the importance of expanded broadband access to Indian and Alaska Native communities. Nearly one in three Native Americans lacks basic telephone service and only one in ten have broadband service.

Finally, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on the Executive Branch standards for land-in-trust decisions for gaming purposes. This hearing examined concerns that have been expressed by tribes, state and municipal governments, and private organizations that the Bureau of Indian Affairs' policy guidelines do not adequately take into consideration the adverse impacts of off-reservation gaming. Indian gaming revenues have grown from a very small amount in 1988, to $16.8 billion in 2003, to $27.9 billion in 2012, the highest revenue amount on record. There are more than 420 casinos run by about 240 tribes across 28 states.

Public Lands and Environmental Regulation Subcommittee

Chaired by Rep. Rob Bishop (UT-01), the new Subcommittee on Public Lands and Environmental Regulation has held 24 hearings this Congress that have focused on protecting and maintaining federal lands and ensuring public access and multiple-use of public lands in order to create jobs and grow our economy.

The Subcommittee has jurisdiction over matters related to the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and all public lands including the National Park System, U.S. Forests, Bureau of Land Management lands and National Monuments. NEPA was previously handled at the Full Committee and the creation of this new Subcommittee allows it to be reviewed in a more focused manner. NEPA impacts nearly every sector of our economy and the Subcommittee focused on how it relates to federal lands and activities, as well as private, state, and local economic development. At the lead of Subcommittee Chairman Bishop, a letter was sent to the Government Accountability Office (GAO) requesting a comprehensive economic and administrative evaluation of federal agencies' required compliance with NEPA over the last five fiscal years. The letter also asks the GAO to examine costs associated with NEPA related litigation and delays in regulatory approvals.

This year, the House passed legislation to renew the federal government's commitment to manage federal forests for the benefit of rural schools and counties. Over a hundred years ago, the federal government made a promise to rural schools and counties that they would share in the benefits of wisely managed forests. Our federal forests were designed to be multiple-use land but over the years, due to faulty federal regulations and litigation, forest management and forest health have dramatically declined. As a result, thousands of people have lost their jobs, counties lack the resources to pay for basic services, and our forest became increasingly susceptible to disease and wildfire. H.R. 1526, Restoring Healthy Forest for Healthy Communities Act, will create over 200,000 direct and indirect jobs; provide stable funding for counties to use for education and other basic services; provide nearly $400 million in savings over 10 years; improve local management of our federal forests; and help reduce the risk of wildfires.

The Subcommittee also held numerous oversight hearings examining the differences between state and federal forest management. Subcommittee Members heard from state leaders, local land managers, and timber experts on the inadequacies and burdens of current federal forest management practices that have contributed to poor forest health, underfunded schools, lost jobs, and suppressed economic activities and recreational opportunities in communities near National Forests. In comparison, state managed forests can often produce hundreds of times more revenue, from just a fraction of the land base while maintaining vibrant, healthy forests to support local communities. The Subcommittee also held hearings on the need for increased forest management to address forest health and reduce the risk of catastrophic wildfires.

In June, the Full Committee approved H.R. 1126, the Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial Completion Act. This bipartisan legislation, sponsored by Subcommittee Chairman Bishop, seeks to build consensus around a new Eisenhower Memorial by implementing a new design competition and providing a three-year extension of the memorial site designation, which is set to expire at the end of 2013. The current design and competition process has been the subject of repeated scrutiny, including by members of the Eisenhower family who are opposed to the current extravagant and inappropriate design. Since 1999, Congress has appropriated $63 million in taxpayer funds for the design of the Memorial and operations of the Commission, and the Commission has requested an additional $51 million in Fiscal Year 2014 to begin construction.

The Committee also approved H.R. 687, the Southeast Arizona Land Exchange and Conservation Act of 2013, introduced by Rep. Paul Gosar (AZ-04). This legislation would authorize a fair value land exchange in Southeast Arizona that would open up the third largest undeveloped copper resources in the world. The mining project would support nearly 3,700 jobs and create an economic impact of nearly $62 billion while bringing in nearly $20 billion in tax revenue to federal, state, and local governments. Additionally, this project would produce enough copper to meet 25 percent of the current U.S. demand and would fully protect environmental and tribal rights.

H.R. 657, the Grazing Improvement Act, introduced by Raúl Labrador (ID-01), was passed by the Full Committee in June. This bipartisan legislation would amend the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 to extend the period of a term for permits and leases from 10 to 20 years for domestic livestock grazing on public lands or lands within national forests. Livestock grazing represents one of the earliest uses of federally managed lands and is essential to the livestock industry, wildlife habitat, open space, and the rural economies of many western communities.

In May, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing featuring testimony by Utah Governor Gary Herbert, Chairman of the Western Governors' Association. The hearing highlighted the challenges of Western states regarding federal and state land management. At the hearing, Members and Governor Herbert discussed how states are able to find their own solutions to land management, tailored to their unique circumstances. In contrast, the federal government is bound by a statutory, attitudinal and regulatory framework that hinders effective land management. Utah and other states are successfully managing their lands in ways that better protect natural resources, promote a healthy economy, and protect public access.

Finally, the Subcommittee conducted oversight into impediments to public recreation on public lands. If managed wisely, our vast system of public lands could provide greater opportunities for the full range of wholesome, outdoor family recreation than are currently allowed. Hearings examined the obstacles by the federal government that put more costs and burdens on small businesses and limit public recreational access to public lands.

Water and Power Subcommittee

Led by Chairman Tom McClintock (CA-04), the Water and Power Subcommittee held 10 hearings this year and advanced multiple bills that focused on creating new American jobs and protecting and promoting water and electric supply infrastructure.

Numerous oversight hearings were held on protecting existing hydropower facilities from litigious special interest groups, protecting non-federal hydroelectric dams from costly, burdensome and often unrelated requirements imposed by federal agencies, and expanding large and small-scale hydropower production.

This August, H.R. 678, The Bureau of Reclamation Small Conduit Hydropower Development and Rural Jobs Act, was signed into law (P.L. 113–24) by President Obama. This law, authored by Rep. Scott Tipton (CO–03) authorizes hydropower production on Bureau of Reclamation water canals and pipes and reduces administrative and regulatory costs for developing these clean and renewable energy projects. This will create jobs and generate thousands of megawatts of hydropower at no cost to taxpayers and will create revenue for local power providers and the federal government.

In a separate action, the House also passed H.R. 1963, The Bureau of Reclamation Conduit Hydropower Development Equity and Jobs Act in December. The bill, authored by Rep. Steve Daines (MT–At Large) removes outdated federal statutory barriers to conduit hydropower development at eleven Bureau of Reclamation projects in the intermountain west. The House also passed H.R. 2640 (Rep. Greg Walden, OR–02) and H.R. 254 (Rep. Jason Chaffetz, UT–03) to facilitate hydropower production at specific federal facilities. H.R. 254 became P.L. 113–20 with the President's signature.

The Subcommittee led the way in questioning the validity and the potential effects of the Obama Administration's National "Blueways" Secretarial Order. Signed by former Interior Secretary Ken Salazar in 2012, the Blueways program allowed unilateral Secretarial discretion to designate entire watersheds as so-called Blueways with very little local community involvement and questionable legal authority. Since February, the House Natural Resources Committee, the Water and Power Subcommittee, the Congressional Western Caucus and the Arkansas and Missouri delegations have conducted oversight into the National Blueways Program. In a letter sent on June 28th, Chairman Doc Hastings (WA–04) asked for explanations about the designation process, the makeup of the National Blueways Committee, the potential for federal land acquisition and regulations, and the involvement of the Interior Department's Senior Advisor Rebecca Wodder. In July, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on the Blueways program with a host of affected citizens. Later that month, the Subcommittee held a field hearing in West Plains, Missouri examining the harmful effects of the National Blueways Order following the designation (and eventual rescission) of the White River Blueway. Over 500 local citizens attended this hearing while the Administration (Ms. Wodder) refused to testify once again. Meanwhile, Interior Secretary Sally Jewell announced that she had "paused" the Blueways program and in August, Wodder left the Interior Department. While it remains unclear whether this "pause" permanent or temporary, the Subcommittee will continue to monitor the currently defunct Blueways program and any future efforts to re-implement it.

In October, the Subcommittee held a hearing to showcase the need for new water storage. Entitled "A Roadmap for Increasing our Water and Hydropower Supplies: The Need for New or Expanded Multi-Purpose Surface Storage Facilities,” the hearing examined the growing need for and the multiple-use benefits of increased water storage and ways to expedite the construction of such facilities.

The Subcommittee also took action this year to protect western water rights. Following an oversight hearing held in April on federal impediments to protecting water rights, the Subcommittee held a legislative hearing on H.R. 3189 (Tipton), the Water Rights Protection Act to protect state recognized water rights, prohibit federal water grabs, and uphold state water laws. This bipartisan legislation will end further attempts by the Obama Administration to take privately held water rights and jeopardize jobs in communities throughout the Western States. The Natural Resources Committee then passed the bill in November with bipartisan support and a Senate companion bill has been introduced by U.S. Senator John Barrasso (WY) and six colleagues.

Multiple hearings were also held to discuss the challenges and priorities of the Power Marketing Administrations. In April, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing examining the spending priorities outlined in the President’s FY2014 budget requests for the Bureau of Reclamation (Reclamation), the four Power Marketing Administrations (PMAs), and the U.S. Geological Survey’s Water Program. At the hearing, Members discussed the importance of restoring abundance as the mission of federal water and power policies in order to prevent man-made water shortages, job losses, higher electricity prices, and questionable spending.

In June, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing entitled “The Power Marketing Administrations: A Ratepayer Perspective.” This hearing featured testimony from some of the electricity ratepayers who receive and pay for hydropower generated at federal dams and transmitted by the four federal PMAs. For generations, millions of electricity consumers have received low-cost hydropower generated at federal dams and reservoirs. The core mission of the four PMAs is to transmit this emissions-free resource to their customers. Through their rates, these customers pay for the electricity supply, the transmission needed to deliver this power, and the capital components of both generation and transmission infrastructure plus interest to the federal government.

DOC HASTINGS,
Chairman.

APPENDIX VII

DISSENTING VIEWS

The Views we provided on the final Report on Legislative and Oversight Activities filed by the Natural Resources Committee in the 112th Congress concluded with the following statement: “Hopefully, the failures of this Congress will inspire improved cooperation and consensus next Congress, as the natural resource challenges we face are only intensifying.” This Report for the First Session of the 113th Congress documents an aggressive pace of hearings and mark-ups, for which the Majority is to be commended, but the cooperation and consensus we had hoped for has not materialized.

The Republican energy agenda is still marked by a slavish, partisan devotion to flawed and futile policies. Instead of stubbornly sticking to their 2008 talking points, the Majority should have acknowledged the on-going oil and gas boom—one that is soon to make the United States the top oil producer in the world—and spent the Committee’s time this year working in a bipartisan manner to ensure that enhanced oil and gas development is environmentally responsible and compatible with local communities and all other uses of our federal lands.

While the rate of activity continues to skyrocket in the deepwater Gulf of Mexico, Congress has not enacted a single reform to the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act in response to the Deepwater Horizon tragedy, which happened over three and a half years ago. Numerous outside groups, including the President’s Oil Spill Commission, have called on Congress to make badly-needed and long-overdue changes to enhance the safety of offshore operations, yet Natural Resources Republicans refused to consider those, preferring instead to focus on giving the oil and gas industry unfettered access to even more of America’s oceans.

In the midst of a fracking boom which is altering the landscape of our energy markets and the landscape of many local communities, the Majority brought forth a poorly written bill that, in an attempt to prohibit even minimal regulation, includes loopholes allowing industry to circumvent all federal environmental and safety protections.

The Majority has pursued aggressive attacks on Federal lands, ignoring broadly-supported proposals to establish National Monuments and declare new wilderness areas, while advancing bills to dispose of federal land and short-circuit public input in the land use planning process. Instead of finding bipartisan ways to enhance recreation and conservation opportunities, the Majority’s agenda has emphasized undermining landmark laws like the National Environmental Policy Act. These partisan attacks put politics above policy and prevented the Committee from engaging in more productive work.

The Majority has invested enormous time and energy investigating implementation of budget sequestration and the federal government shutdown by the Forest Service and National Park Service, both of which were the result of House Republican intransigence on the budget. Instead of working with the Minority to address the problems caused by sequestration, the Majority issued subpoenas to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Office of Management and Budget over the Obama Administration's determination that Secure Rural Schools funds are subject to sequestration. The Majority's open-ended investigation into this matter has been a distraction when we could have been working on bipartisan legislation to accomplish our shared goal of restoring these critical funds to rural counties.

Perhaps the low point of the year was a joint hearing with the Oversight and Government Reform Committee during which the Majority attempted to shift blame for the Republican shutdown by launching mean-spirited, personal attacks against the Director of the National Park Service, a dedicated and accomplished forty-year public servant. Hopefully, the budget deal approved this week is an indication that what the Republicans learned through their investigation of the shutdown is that shutdowns should be avoided.

It appears that the Committee may turn its attention away from the "Oil Above All" agenda to reauthorizing the Magnuson-Stevens and Endangered Species Acts. This recognition of the importance of these issues is welcome. The oversight hearings on these laws have been partisan, lopsided affairs, however, raising grave concerns regarding the Majority's openness to constructive, bipartisan, bicameral efforts to update these critical statutes. We have repeatedly expressed our interest in working cooperatively on these issues and remain hopeful our invitation will be accepted.

We also hope the Majority will begin to take seriously the global crisis in wildlife poaching, illegal logging, and pirate fishing that is decimating species, funding terrorists, and undercutting legitimate American businesses. We requested hearings on these matters during the first session, but instead of granting those requests, the majority continued its misguided crusade to chisel away at the Lacey Act, one of our bedrock conservation laws. The pace at which organized criminal syndicates are clearing forests, depleting fisheries, and killing elephants, rhinos, and tigers warrants immediate action from Congress.

The Committee has abdicated its responsibilities regarding our vital insular areas, holding only a single budget hearing this year. Not only does this approach leave serious economic and conservation issues unaddressed, it also ignores significant national security issues.

Finally, the most egregious failure of the Natural Resources Committee Majority in 2013 is the refusal to consider budgetary savings in programs within the Committee's jurisdiction during a time of severe budget shortfalls. In 2011, Democrats on this Committee submitted a proposal to the Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction that would have saved $20 billion over ten years from programs within the Natural Resources Committee's purview.

These proposals included reform of the General Mining Law of 1872, repeal of massive revenue payments to the U.S. Gulf States, increased royalty rates for oil and gas development on federal lands and reform of outdated grazing laws; the Majority opposed all of these proposals. In a time when federal support for the long-term unemployed and nutrition assistance to the working poor are being cut, the refusal of the Majority to even consider reducing the enormous windfalls enjoyed by those who use our public lands for private profit is indefensible.

We now have three full years of evidence that the Republican agenda for the Natural Resources Committee is at odds with the priorities and values of the American people. We remain eager to engage in the kind of negotiation and cooperation that have yielded real legislative accomplishment in the past and could do so in the future.
